<sup>8</sup> A thorough review of the Navy Lists of the 1914-18 period fails to identify the particular Lieutenant Edwards. There are twenty 'Edwards' listed in NA [UK] ADM273; RNAS officers & warrant officers records for WW1. None show service in Romania in the RNAS Armoured Car Squadron. It is possible that he continued to serve in the Royal Navy after 1918 & that his record has not yet been made available to researchers. ADM273 was closed until 1994. Who's Who 1937 shows a Commander Patrick Harrington Edwards DSO in command of the Allied Naval Brigade in North Russia in 1919.

<sup>27</sup> It was most difficult to identify exactly which Yeoman of Signals Wood was killed. However William Spencer at the UK National Archives in Kew was able to find his service record: he was Frederick Samuel Wood. As the most elusive of those mentions by Conrad Cato, his complete service record is bound in.
